Correspondents are respectfully requested to address me from Saturday, June 19, until Wednesday, June 30, care Messrs. Bangs & Co., New York City; and in behalf of myself, as well as the agents who usually purchase at the sales, it is requested that orders may be sent in good season to secure their proper entry and execution.

This Catalogue, No. 88, printed uniform with my regular series on heavy tinted paper and priced in red ink, will be sent to order for $1.00; No. 85, Postage and Revenue Stamps, priced, 50 cents; No. 86, Archaeology, 75 cents; No. 87, Minerals, the Wettstein Collection, 50 cents; and No. 87, the Jasperized Wood and Mineral Co.'s Collection, large quarto, ordinary paper, 75 cents.

I have several times called attention to the fact that I have a large number of fraudulent stone relics, purporting to be prehistoric. These were all obtained from one man in Cincinnati, under most positive assurances of genuineness, but are now declared, on the best authority, to be fraudulent. These I will exhibit at the close of my Archaeological Sale, No. 86, and intended in that catalogue to give a detailed description of them. At that sale they will be shown as products of the new Cincinnati industry. The objects consist of four pipes, a discoidal stone, and a carved human figure. I have many besides those referred to from the Cincinnati vendor, but are all of a class, and the few shown will, as well as more, serve to illustrate the dangerous nature of these villainous swindles, and it is hoped will put collectors on their guard against them.

I hope also to have at the same place several of the fraudulent articles from the Philadelphia manufacturers, which have recently been sold at high prices in New York City; but the labors of the gang whose work is referred to here, have probably ceased, through the intervention of U. S. detectives, and collectors run little risk from them unless they succeed in reaching future buyers through new channels.

656 1854 Double Eagle; private issue of Kellogg & Co., San Franeisco; good, has now become very rare.

657 Brasher Doubloon; in weight 451 grains; four grains lighter than a doubloon, against which it was weighed; the centre has been perforated, and has been weighted with a gold plug, which increases the thickness and adds to the weight; on the plug is impressed with a stamp the monogram E B, and, if I am not much mistaken, the stamp is identical with that impressed on the New York doubloon by Brasher, the reputed maker. The rarity of the New York doubloon is well known and can hardly be overrated, and, to me, it seems clear that this coin passed through the hands of the maker, Brasher, and was stamped by him. The coin itself is of Spanish issue, of the coinage called "cob money," and in value intended for a doubloon; excessively rare, and, with the counterstamp, which identifies it as American, I doubt not unique. Bears the Spanish pillars and the arms of Spain, but the date is so mixed as to be uncertain. The gold is of superior fineness.

658 1769 Spanish Doubloon of Carolus III. Bust; rev., arms crowned and surrounded by the Order chain of the golden fleece; very good, rare.

659 Cob Money of Spain. Quarter Doubloon, reduced in weight by clipping to 96 grains. A rude ancient coin.

660 1785 Hesse-Cassel. Frederick II, Landgrave, known to history and to infamy as "the soul-seller," as he enjoys the distinction of having sold his subjects, the Hessian soldiers, to George III for the war of the Revolution. His infamous memory is here preserved in a beautiful coin; the obv. a bust in armor; rev., a river god reclining by a stream; a mining region and building in the background. (Lat.) "Thus shine the shores of gold flowing Adrana." A splendid ducat. Extremely rare, from the collection of Prof. Anthon.

COLONIALS, EARLY AMERICAN AND PSEUDO-COLONIALS.

734 1652 Pine tree shilling, small tree; a fine and well-spread coin, though a little clipped and has a small perforation. Cost in the Twining collection $8.00. Rare.

738 N. E. Shilling, N. E.: rev., XII. I do not know where this piece came from, but it lacks the striae so prominent on the Wyatt pieces, and I am in doubt whether it may or may not be genuine: silver; fine.

739 N. E. Sixpence; silver. The Baltimore counterfeit.

740 1665 Massachusetts Colony Shilling. "XII Pence, 1665"; rev., "M. N. E. Col." In the centre a star of nine points; silver; fine. This piece came from New Hampshire where it was probably made within a few years, the same piece having since appeared in copper. It is interesting, but without doubt a fraud, for which the maker received $25.00.

741 1776 One Dollar. Radiant Liberty cap: between the rays ten groups of stars, three in each, struck over a Spanish real. This piece, I have little doubt, is a token struck for the period of 1837. It is doubtless unique. I have known this for many years, and think another has never turned up.

742 1783 Chalmer's Sixpence. Worn, but a very rare coin.

743 Pennsylvania Half Dollar. Arms of the city of Phila.; rev., within a wreath "F s. 50 cents": white copper; from the Tilton collection. For a brief account of this piece see No. 333, my sale 84. See also No. 1168 of the Levick collection, in which catalogue it is illustrated. In the sale it brought $28.50. Of these coins two only are known.

744 1723 Rosa Americana Penny, with crowned rose; fair, rare.

745 1778 Non dependens status. Bust in armor to right; rev., America holding a shield and seated on a globe. The original of this piece was from the Howard collection, and was purchased in the Finotti sale by Mrs. Judge Paige, of New York, since which time it appears to be unknown to numismatists. Copper, proof. Robinson's copy.

746 1786 New Jersey Cent; narrow shield; fine.

747 1787 New Jersey Cent; long, large plough; good.

PATTERN PIECES.

764 1837 Feuchtwanger Three Cents; rev., eagle standing on a pile of rocks; "Feuchtwanger composition"; nearly proof. This is stated to be the rarest of the Feuchtwanger three cent pieces, and in the Bushnell sale brought a very large price; a finer sample than this is not known; extremely rare.

765 1863 Ten Dollars; struck in copper; rev., "God our trust"; proof, rare. This and the following were purchased at a very large price directly from the Mint authorities when Mr. Pollock was superintendent, and acting in an official capacity, and if he or his assistants paid for them, a fact which I have always doubted, the Government received for them a very large price, much in excess of the value of the precious metals on which they should have been struck. Men of middle age will well remember Mr. Seward's little bell, the tinkling of which consigned many a man to imprisonment, without a hearing or a trial. Some of these men were probably heard from afterwards, others perhaps were not. The United States Government now manages things differently: it, first, through its authorized agents, sells coins at an exorbitant, unheard of price, and next by other agents seizes them without apology, compensation, or, so far as we know, by any legal right. As I expect to be deprived of these pattern coins, this statement is made in explanation to such correspondents as ordering this class of pieces will doubtless be disappointed by not receiving them.

766 1863 Half Dollar; rev., God our trust, on a label; copper, proof. Bought from the officers of the mint at a price much exceeding that of the legitimate cost of the metal, which should be silver. For several of these "God-our-trust" patterns, received from Pollock's peddlers, I paid $50.00 each, and, for a number of them, Mr. Daniel Bertsh, of Mauch-Chunk, Penn., paid me $100.00 each.

767 1863 Two Cent Piece. Head of Washington. "God and our Country"; copper, proof; rare pattern.

768 Dollar of A. Bechtler; "27 G. Carolina Gold, 21 C." Brass. The original of this is not an authorized U. S. coin. Fine; rarer than gold.

768*a* Five dollars. "Georgia Gold"; rev., "5 Dollars; C. Bechtler, at Rutherford"; copper pattern of an unauthorized gold coinage of an early period, hence the sale of this piece, like the last, can be no infringement on the rights of the government.

769 1868 Pattern 3 cents, nickel; a trifle larger than the regular coin: fine, scarce.

770 1869 A set of underweight subsidiary coinage, comprising three halves, three quarters and three dimes. Of the obverses of these pieces the designs are distinctly different. Silver proofs bought at the Mint and cost $15.00. 9 pcs.

771 1836 First steam coinage, March 23; copper, very fine, scarce.

772 1859 Half dollar, Head of Liberty; rev. 50 cents, surrounded by a corn and tobacco wreath; copper. Bought from the U. S. Government Mint at the period of its issue. See note to 765.

This medal, recently exhibited at the meeting of the Boston Num. the Society thought it doubtful whether the piece relates to Boston, England, or Boston, Mass. Silver, believed unique; good, though not perfect.
